

Introducing Eleanor Atkinson Primary Science

Eleanor has a wealth of experience within primary science education, teaching and leading science for 16 years across the full primary age-range in mainstream and ASD/EBD schools. She has worked as a Leading Teacher of Science for Bolton Education Authority, and is experienced in creating and delivering high quality, exemplary lessons and workshops in Science, Technology, Engineering and Math.

In 2015, she was awarded Primary Science Teacher of the year and became a lifetime college fellow of Primary Science Teaching Trust and an independent Primary Science Consultant. In 2016, she worked in collaboration with Professor Saiful Islam and the RI to produce a series of primary lessons linked to the 2016 Christmas Lectures broadcast on BBC. In 2017 Eleanor contributed to the latest edition of ASE guide to Primary Science, writing a chapter on how to promote understanding through dialogue. In addition to her consultancy work for Primary Science and the Ogden Trust, Eleanor is currently an associate lecturer at Edge Hill University, guiding a Hub of schools through the Primary Science Quality Mark and writing a range of science textbooks for the International market.
